

To Whom It May Concern,

Working with Cube was an extraordinary experience. During the pregnancy of our first child, they designed a Master Suite addition to our existing home built in 1953. From concept to completion, we found the process to be thorough, and deliberate. Even at the first presentation of concepts it was evident that we were working with the highest caliber of people and truly gifted architects.

We had no idea that our space could affect the way we live so profoundly. Each design decision defines a purpose and functionality enhancing the whole. During the building process, issues of concern in regards to construction, permits and the building department were handled quickly, accurately and creatively.

The resulting product expanded our perceptions about material use, space and how this process can be. We have nothing but good things to say about Cube, they build our trust enough to push our ideas beyond our thoughts about how things ought to be and gave us something remarkable.
